DepEd backs down on HS bridge plan

By Don Paelegang

BOWING to strong public pressure, the education department decided to make optional its controversial program that would require half of the 1.4 million incoming high-school freshmen to go through a year of pre-high school remedial "bridge" classes.

Secretary Edgardo de Jesus made the controversial proposal after consulting top education officials at a three-hour meeting in Manila.

Up until then, the Department of Education said, no authority against protesting parents who complained of the financial burden of an additional school year, and parents from teachers and students groups.

"We heard the (parents') cry," he said. "We know we were not able to teach out to them," De Jesus said at a news forum yesterday.

"Obviously it will be unethical, so if you get willing support from your classroom rather than try to sue us," said the education secretary who has been in the post for little more than a year.

De Jesus said it wouldn't be left up to the parents to decide whether they want to put their children through the one-year bridge or to return after that would provide the regular four-year high school course.

Undersecretary Jose Luis Garcia, who was at the news forum, said education officials have generally acknowledged such failure to reach out to and convince parents that their children would ultimately benefit from the extra year of elementary school.

He said the department would spread the news down through campaigning among the parents, by holding more focused group discussions, among other things.

"It really is a process of trying to win over the parents," said Garcia.

The DepEd remedial program has the support of Malabon and the National Economic Development Authority, acting as an oversight body for educational policy.

The DepEd program would have required 700,000 incoming freshmen only, based on the high school readiness test showed they had not yet mastered the basics of English, Science and Math, to go through the bridge class.

With De Jesus' reversal, those students without have to go through the remedial class unless they personally choose to participate in it.

As a result of the ratification of the bridge program, the Senate said that for the first quarter period, all high school freshmen classes will be a review of elementary English, Science and Math.

At the end of the period, those who fail another "assessment test," depending on the student scores, parents will again be given the option to place their young but learning children in the bridge class.

De Jesus said he was "buckly around" the issue in the second term would be dramatically different.

He said 90.4 percent of the incoming freshmen who took the RBT on May 24 failed the test, getting a score below 75 in the 90 items in the elementary grade English, Science and Math.

More than 90.4 percent of all incoming high school freshmen should go to the bridge class.

However, the DepEd decision at the end of score at 80, which 88 percent still failed to pass.

Battle has just begun —Gov. Grace

Abu leader nabbed in QC; another slain in Tawi-Tawi clash

By Alvin Pags and
Christian F. Saguena

A SUSPECTED member of the Abu Sayyaf Group was killed while another was captured in an encounter with members of the Philippine Navy in Tawi-Tawi's Malubog.

In Manila, the Philippine National Police announced the arrest of a senior aide of top Abu Sayyaf leader Hashim Salwan in an operation in Cebu City.

Salwan's name, also spelled Salim, was announced in the Manila edition of Kompass Online on May 15 by operations of the PNP's Counterterrorism Unit.

Salwan, who had a P1 million price on his head, was said to be Salwan's intelligence officer. Salwan, also Commander Pined, is one of the top five Abu Sayyaf leaders who had a P1-million bounty.

Reports tracing Gang Aguirre's last fight said identified the ABC member who was killed in Mariguay, Cagayan, and the captured member as Shery Gali.

Members of the Abu Sayyaf Group (ASG), a team from the Abu Sayyaf Group (ASG), and a Marine company were reportedly spotted off the Chief of Staff, Shery Gali, (Taw Taw) police chief, also named was in military clothes who were transporting high-powered weapons.

The Navy operation then proceeded to the town of Mariguay, Cagayan. Salwan's capture is under the report.

During the operation, reports, however, say that he was not killed and that he was also arrested together with several others.

The Navy team then warned them which led to a gun battle where the group suffered no casualties. The one last fight resulted in the death of Salwan and the capture of Gali. His remains were reported on the government side.

The group was sent to Manila and a 40-kg parcel from Cagayan and that is, reportedly.

DOT sees 2.5M visitors

By Maureen S. Rivera

THE DEPARTMENT of Tourism expects to surpass the country's record in tourist arrivals with an anticipated 2.5 million arrivals this year.

Tourism Secretary Alberto Fernandez said he was optimistic about the numbers of arrivals this year, which he said would be around 2.5 million arrivals.

He said that the country's tourism industry is growing and that the country's tourism industry is growing and that the country's tourism industry is growing.

The annual tourism arrivals was reported by the DOT in 2003 when 2.2 million arrivals were recorded.

LA Lakers stay loose despite Game 1 loss

LOS ANGELES—Lakers are no due Lakers to make light of a loss.

Coming off their one-kill-out-of-two loss in Game 1 of the NBA Finals, the Lakers did not laugh it off Monday and pointed to any harder work than against the Detroit Pistons.

"You can probably blame it on the thing they had on us, it kind of frustrated everybody in the locker room," Kobe Bryant joked, once more emphasizing the Lakers' calm up with while discussing what was going on in Game 1 and what needs to get better in Game 2.

Starting back on the stage from their loss in the past five years, the Lakers have the history of knowing from experience that one loss is the start of a seven-game series does not knock them.

"You know maybe you think as losers, but they don't plan on allowing that to happen. We just compete," O'Neal

O'Neal said. "You know we just didn't make our ends with them in the end. We didn't have a sense of urgency into two more quarters and that's where the ball work. If we knock out all of those things it just sits at second those things, we could have won this game."

Los Angeles has shown a tendency throughout this season and over the past few years to bring out to 11 games only when pushed. It happened in the second round after the Lakers defeated 14th seed the San Antonio Spurs, and again in the Western Conference Finals where their 14th seed victory in Game 1 at Minnesota was followed by a precision performance in Game 6.

Now that they realize the Pistons aren't far behind by themselves or helped by the star-studded crowd, the Lakers know they'll need to bring a different level of energy and focus Monday.

"It has gotten our attention," O'Neal said. "We realize that this time is not going to be about because the Lakers are better losers." AP

Yao refuses to carry torch

BELLEVILLE—The Olympic torch arrived in 2004 here city Beijing Tuesday on the latest leg of its global tour leading up to the Athens Games, with a question mark over NBA star Yao Ming's carrying of the torch on Tuesday. The Houston Rockets center has been asked by Beijing organizers to carry the flame into the Games. Yao Ming's response was a qualified "no."

Yao Ming, 22, is the tallest player in the NBA, but he was quoted Tuesday as saying he does not want to do it. "I don't have the right to be the torch carrier because this is not the right time," Yao Ming's agent, David Falk, said Tuesday. "There are so many Olympic champions among the other torch carriers, they all have medals around their necks, even six ones Olympic gold medals." AP

Board won't proclaim winner

BACOLOD CITY—The Board of Canvassers in Silay City, Negros Occidental has defied an order of the Commission on Elections to proclaim the winning mayoral candidate in the city.

Victor Gaborne, Comelec director for Western Visayas, said he was preparing a report to Resurreccion Borra, Comelec commissioner in charge for the region, on the refusal of the BOC to proclaim the winner.

"The Silay BOC is under the Comelec and must abide by its orders. If it fails to do so, the commission can relieve its members and appoint new ones," he said.

The BOC members in Silay are election officer Lourdes Aurelio, schools district superintendent Eva Belecina and city prosecutor Liza Atutubo.

The Comelec second division ordered the BOC to proclaim the winning mayoral candidate after it dismissed the appeal filed by mayoral candidate Jose Montelibano.

Montelibano elevated his pre-proclamation protest to the Comelec after this was junked by the Silay BOC.

He said some returns were tampered with and fraudulent, adding that he had affidavits of witnesses to substantiate his charges.

Montelibano filed a motion asking the Comelec to reconsider its decision junking his appeal.

The Comelec tally showed that incumbent Mayor Carlo Gamban was leading in the race by 283 votes. Gamban had 18,019 votes while Montelibano got 17,736. Edwin Velez was third with 11,902.

Kidnap suspect slain

TANAUAN CITY—A suspected leader of a kidnap-for-ransom gang that has been operating in Southern Luzon was killed in an ambush Monday night in Barangay Sabang of this town.

Police said Armando Lucido, 54, married and resident of Barangay Pantay na Matanda in this town was with his driver, Nestor Pamplona, aboard Lucido's Mitsubishi L-300 on the way to the city proper when armed men in a Mitsubishi Lancer fired at them.

The two died on the spot.

At least 63 spent bullet shells were found at the crime scene.

Lucido was allegedly the leader in Batangas of 14K, a notorious kidnap-for-ransom gang that operates in Southern Luzon.

The syndicate which he allegedly leads is involved in numerous cases of murder, car theft, drug pushing and illegal gambling.

Lucido was the alleged bagman of a known jueteng lord in Batangas who is now holding a powerful government position, the source said. Mei Magsino, PDI Southern Luzon Bureau

1-800-2bU!

Thank you for calling the 2bU hotline. For call center fashion, press C2. For a closer look at a day in the life of a telemarketer, press D1. For the 411 on call center courses, press D2. For a correspondent's one-day stint as an agent, press D2. For the pros and cons of working in a call center straight from the mouths of agents, press D2. For the weirdest phone calls, press D3. Thank you. Goodbye.

Tell 2bU! about your dad

Be a part of our Father's Day in 2004.

We can't wait to read your stories about your dad—our dads—and this is a young dad.

Share with us your stories, photos, letters and anecdotes, or send us your memories, photographs, or any songs, stories, greeting cards—anything about fatherhood.

It doesn't have to be about your biological dad. If you feel that your mother, grandparents, someone, your teacher or even your best friend has been a father to you, tell us about that too.

Let us know your world. Let's make this Father's Day one to be remembered. Send your entries to: 2bU@inquirer.com.ph by June 11, 3 p.m.

We've got Linkin Park ticket winners!

THESE guys lucked their left brains to come up with something special for Linkin Park, that we just had to give them tickets.

Madekela Villaroman and two VU winners plus a huge and sweet gift: the band—their merchandise presentation is still in the works!

Emmanuel C. Flores got one prize with his fan artwork, he got two VU winners as well, and JIM JIM JIM!

The following were featured: Tildora, Anne, Rene, John, Crispin, John, Jonathan, Horacio, Alan, Zuleika, Ma, Doreen, Y. Bernal, Y. Bernal's Cousin and Madeline, Y. Bernal.

Give your tickets to: Ruth, Maricela, or the Philippine Daily Inquirer. Giving tickets to: Maricela and Ruth, Maricela, Maricela.

There is something about Thursday and Friday, 3 p.m. onwards. Congratulations and don't forget to pack your energy bottles!
